

David HIRCOCK

Professional Background

Professor David Hircock works internationally in areas of fair and equitable trade and conservation, specializing in supply chain of natural resources especially herbal medicines. He works with Indigenous peoples around the world highlighting human rights issues including land tenure and access to natural resources. Often the result of this work culminates in developing equitable business partnerships with Indigenous peoples and farmers in countries, including, Australia, Brazil, Honduras, South Africa, Nepal, etc.

He is the Advisor on natural resources to the Estee Lauder Companies, Inc.

Extras:

- Adjunct Professor of Socio-Ethnopharmacognosy – Drexel University – School of Public Health
- Advisor to Climate, Community and Biodiversity Alliance - Honduras.
- Experience in Inappropriate labour practices – child labour to slavery:
- Member of the Public and Private Alliance - Certification and Sustainable Marketing of Non-Timber Forest - Nepal
- Member of Advisory Panel of Swiss Government – United Nations - Convention on Biological Biodiversity – Access to Benefit Sharing